How We're Adapting This Meeting to Keep You Safe During Covid

We know many of you are ready to make plans for this winter, and we want to give you some important updates so you can do that! We will be holding the meetings on-location this winter so that you can travel to and enjoy the area, and will definitely offer livestream viewing of the lectures no matter what. We hope to offer a hybrid meeting approach, where you can choose to be in the meeting room or watch the livestream of the lectures from your device in your own room or condo, so that you can choose your own comfort level! On-site tuition will include food for the lecture sessions, served in re-imagined ways for heightened safety (more details on this will be sent out closer to the meeting time). We're not yet sure if it will be possible to have people inside the meeting room (with extra safety precautions), and that will have to be a last-second decision as we see what the conditions and restrictions are surrounding each meeting; we will certainly update you on this status with details right ahead of the meeting time, and we will err on the side of safety. In the meantime, you can count on the livestream version of the meeting happening on-location, so you can feel good about making travel plans and reserving lodging. If you are not comfortable with traveling this year, a livestream-only registration option is available.

See the COVID Updates page on our website for the latest updates about meeting plans, and for more details about each meeting location.
